Our 36th Annual Spring Racing Series provided something for almost everyone. Friday's thick fog allowed the navigators to tune up for the season and gave the electronic bugs a chance to calibrate their fathometers - some at the zero end of the scale. To those who "found and followed Nor'easter" in Watch Hill passage - she does not have radar.

Light southerly breezes eventually got us off towards the Island after the large and fast Class C-1 vessels had used an interminable hour to clear the line and various other obstructions (who should know who they were). The resulting traffic jam at Nebraska spiced up the proceedings and the survivors finished in a rising and smoking Sou'wester (and in one class with one minute to spare).

Saturday provided downwind starting practice with the expected results - a few early, a lot in the middle, a few late, and nobody right on. Increasing winds, crossing courses on downwind legs, and a brace of tugs and tows offered further interest. A rugged beat back to the finish, observing dear old lBI, again tweaked the navigators and tacticians, some of whom finished from a rather westerly vantage point with sheets well eased. Always go West? Maybe, but not back to Montauk!

Sunday, of course, was lovely - fair wind and fair tide - and you could see to Maine. All in all a fine series, and for you of little faith, there will be a Fall Series - 14 and 15 September - don't forget your entry!

FINAL RESULTS

Two hundred and three yachts completed two days of racing under conditions varying from glorious to totally frustrating. Conditions created a dangerous jam for the long course vessels at Nebraska the first day. In spite of the fact that there were no serious injuries to crews attempting to fend off, good seamanship must prevail over the racing instinct!

The reaction to class flags was good, helpful to both contestants and the Race Committee. Unfortunately, many flags were removed after the first day. Read your Final Notice carefully; they may be required for the Fall Series!

If you wish to compare your times with vessels in another class, add or subtract the difference in relative starting times which are printed for the second day and as follows for the first day:
